

Brian Kennedy is a leading Irish visual artist who has exhibited in Europe, North America and Asia. His work focuses on large-scale site-specific installations but also includes photography, performance and drawing. He also writes about art and has curated exhibitions both nationally and internationally. He sees making, curating and writing about art as one practice.

Brian was the Arts Council of Northern Ireland Fellow at the British School at Rome in 2002 and has held residences in Europe, North America and Australia. Through travel he seeks to understand the complexities of existence and this informs his practice.